Some people are rich in money and poor in principle. Others are rich in principle and poor in money. And the latter, says an exchange are best citizens in every particular. Deliver us from a gouge, who sees nothing but a dollar and is not particular how he gets it, and is not considerate of the feelings of others who have in no small measure made it possible for him to enjoy wealth. Wealth in the hands of a man without good, warm blood in his make up is not only a curse to him, but to the community in which he lives.—Ex.

J. F. Lewis, manager of the Morgan county mining and prospecting Co., returned this week from a business trip to Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Decker, of Versailles, were in Tipton Saturday on their way to Sedalia to visit the family of their son, Harry, and to attend state fair. They formerly resided in Tipton and Mr. Decker subscribed for The Times to keep in touch with friends here.—Tipton Times.

D. Collier, a good friend of the Mail, drove to Versailles, a distance of 22 miles, in two hours and forty-five minutes last week to attend the fair at Versailles. Mrs. Collier went along to see that he did not ride the merry-go-round too much. It was a splendid fair they say.—Tipton Mail.

Dramshop Statistics

Figures pertaining to the dramshop and local option in Missouri have been recently gathered and compiled in an official way, and made public.

During the month of July the county clerks of the 114 counties were requested to furnish reports of the number of licensed saloons in the counties, the increase or decrease in the number of saloon licenses issued during the previous six months, the vote cast for and against local option in the counties where the voters have been afforded an opportunity lately to express their choice of the question, and if local option was being agitated in the counties.

Reports have been received from all the counties and show the following results:

Total number saloons in state, including three large cities, 5,242; number of counties voting on local option, recently, 37; number counties adopting local option, 30; number counties rejecting local option, 7; total vote cast for local option in thirty-seven counties, 31,429; majority of vote in favor of local option, 44,882.

According to reports received nine other counties of the state have no saloons, making a total of thirty-nine non-saloon counties in Missouri. The question of local option is being agitated in fourteen other counties, and special elections to give the citizens an opportunity to settle the question have been ordered in some of these counties.

Increase in land values of $56,913,860 and a gain in population of 100,000—that is the story in figures of Missouri's march of prosperity last year. If the story were told in detail it would fill a volume of prose and poetry, illustrated of tall corn and yellow waving wheat, giant stacks of bluegrass hay, prize-winning horses, mules and cattle, world's champions all; chickens and dairy products—Missouri is pushing to the front rank in dairy products—the largest orchards in the world, and lead, zinc and coal mines, richer in annual product than the gold and silver of California or Alaska. It would be a book of great pictures. Missouri is a state of wonderful diversified industries; in fact, it is the boast of her historians that if a wall were built around the state its people would not miss the outside world, for they raise everything they need to eat, drink and wear, and have an enormous annual surplus to put back into the soil and to fatten their immense holdings in hogs, horse, mules, sheep, and cattle.—Kansas City Journal.

More Courtship After Marriage.

Some men seem to consider their marriage certificate as a sort of fully paid-up policy of happiness. They act as if the courtship days were those of paying premiums of compliment, cheerfulness, courtesy, consideration and chivalry, and that marriage cuts off all these premiums of love like attention. The only way to get a absolutely guaranteed insurance on matrimony is to keep paying the premiums. Many first-class matrimonial policies lapse just because of these suspended payments.

There is a tendency to assume that this love is known and recognized, so why speak of it? This is a dangerous taking for granted of what should be made real, pulsing and vital in thought, word and deed. There is little danger of over-telling this story; it is often the wine of life and inspiration to one hungering and thirsting for the little tendernesses of affection. There are more people on this great, big, rolling earth hungering for sweetness, tenderness, and words of appreciation, genial confidence and generous affection than are starving for bread. With husband and wife these delicate messengers of affection cost so little—sometimes only a thought but it is the thought that is all.

Continued courtship after marriage preserves the lover in the husband and the sweetheart in the wife. But courtship is not solitary; like a quarrel, it requires two to make it a success. It is not the wife alone who needs the gracious sweetness of concentrated comradeship, for husbands who are built on the right lines have the same hunger for loving kindness and kindly loving.

Courtship is a vessel of promise that is often wrecked on the shoals of matrimony. Courtship means two mates without a captain; marriage sometimes becomes two captains without a mate.—From the October D. LINEATOR.
